

We use cookies on this website, you can read about them here. To use the website as intended please

Accept cookies

Cultivation Street is back for 2016

Win up to two thousands pounds for your school garden!

09 May 2016

Cultivation Street is an initiative, founded by TV gardener David Domoney, to encourage communities and schools to revitalise their streets and green spaces.

Sign up to be a part of the campaign and you can enter your school into the Cultivation Street Awards to win £2,000 in National Gardening Gift Vouchers!

There are three prizes available within the school award:

- 1st prize: £2,000
- 2nd prize: £1,000
- 3rd prize: £500

The awards will go to the schools that have best involved children to create an inspirational school garden. The garden can be edible or ornamental and new or well-established.

The schools should also be able demonstrate that they are teaching children how to garden and interact with nature. The award is open to any school in the UK and Channel Islands.

Last year's winner was Ballycraigy Primary School in County Antrim, Northern Ireland (one of our School Gardening Team of the year finalists from last year!) who's impressive growing and wildlife projects bowled the judges over.

Second prize went to Dalton St Mary's in Cumbria and third prize went to Eagley Infants in Bolton. You can read more about the winners here.

To find out more and to apply for a free Cultivation Street Email Starter Pack containing tips and guidance for greening up your school, click here.