BBQs at the ready!

Dear {FULL_NAME},

May is one of my favourite times of the year; full of the promise of summer and holidays with the family, not to mention some great opportunities to spend time outdoors, like National Gardening Week and National BBQ Week. On top of that, there's also a new royal baby and a royal wedding to celebrate! Many of us will be getting busy in our gardens, planning and preparing for outdoor entertaining, or plotting and planting our summer crops and flowers.

Your spring bulbs will be making way for summer bedding plants, so now is the time to get these potted up and ready to go. You'll also probably want to give your patio area a quick spruce up and your garden furniture a spring clean, not forgetting to wipe down the grill ready for its debut. If you're planning your own wedding this year – I've got some great ideas for hosting your special day in the garden, which you can check out below.

To celebrate the start of summer, I've also got loads of fantastic prizes to giveaway, so read on to find out how you can enter...

Gardening Tip Of The Month

Damping off fungus can cause emerging seedlings to collapse when sowing under glass. Protect your seedlings by adding a little chamomile tea to the soil around the base of your plants or mist plants as a foliar spray.
